NON-TRADITIONAL WET-ON-WET WATERCOLOR PAINTING

With Carol Duchamp

caroljduchamp@gmail.com

*WELCOME to my College of Marin painting classes. If you are a beginner, please bring the suggested WATERCOLOR minimum to your first class. If you are a practicing painter, you may bring additional supplies of your choice, making sure the minimum is covered and that you are using tube watercolor pigments.

Watercolor

Paints: I recommend professional grade tube watercolors in 5 ml or 15 ml tubes. Professional quality paints have more pigment and produce better results. Brands include Winsor-Newton, Holbein, Daniel Smith and Schmincke among others. If you are a beginner and are not yet ready to make the investment in professional grade paints, you may use the Cotman student grade brand, a subsidiary of Winsor-Newton, for getting started.

- Alizarin Crimson*
- Permanent Rose
- Winsor Yellow*
- Winsor Indian Yellow
- Pthalo Blue (Red Shade)*
- Cerulean or Manganese Blue Hue

* Paint Minimum – 1 red, 1 yellow, 1 blue tube of watercolor paint

Tube Watercolor Paints (optional)

- Holbein leaf green
- Lemon yellow
- Opera Rose
- Holbein peacock blue
- Carmine

Paper: I recommend professional grade 100% cotton rag paper. Brands include Arches and Fabriano. However, these papers can be expensive and beginners may substitute Fluid (cotton) or Strathmore watercolor paper. We will discuss different weights and textures in class. I suggest starting out with 140 lb cold press paper.

- 1 12 sheet pad or block of 100% Cotton, Acid Free, 140 lb Cold Press paper 9" x 12" (Arches or Fabriano) or 1 12 sheet pad of student grade paper (see above). *
- (Optional) 1 sheet of Arches 140 lb or 300 lb cold press paper (22" x 30") pre-torn into quarter size or half size or full sheet size

* Paper Minimum – 1 pad or block of 9" x 12" watercolor paper professional or student grade

Note: If you purchase a block instead of a pad with tear out sheets (easier), please have a razor blade, mat knife or tool for separating the sheets on hand.

Brushes: Brand names for quality watercolor brushes include Isabey, DaVinci, Princeton, Raphael and Winsor-Newton among others. These brushes can be expensive. For beginners and experienced painters new to wet-on-wet painting I recommend the much less expensive ZEN Royal & Langnickel or Kolibri brushes.

My favorite all-time brush is the Isabey 'Petit Gris' squirrel mop brush that holds plenty of water and pigment and comes to a very fine point. These brushes are quite expensive, but if you are a serious painter, well worth the investment. Brushes are personal and it is best to try them out in the store and see what feels right in your hand. For class purposes a medium to large 'pointed round' in natural or synthetic fibers will work fine. The DaVinci 'spin synthetic' is another good brush. If the brush part of the 'pointed round' you choose is 1" or more in length, then it should hold enough water and pigment for expressive purposes. Make sure your brush comes to a fine point when tested in water in the store. For expressive work, the larger the brush, the better!

- 1 pointed round watercolor brush (natural or synthetic) at least 1" in length (brush part).*
- 1 pointed round watercolor brush (natural or synthetic) ½" in length (brush part) for detail
- 1 pointed round watercolor brush (natural or synthetic 1 ½ " in length (brush part) for large, expressive work

*Brush Minimum – 1 pointed round watercolor brush 1" in length (brush part)

Additional Tools*

- 1 plastic palette with 9 or more wells
- 1 pencil
- 1 plant mister (spray bottle)
- 2 or more water containers (large yoghurt containers work well)
- 1 roll of paper toweling
- painting apron or large man's shirt

*Tool Minimum – all

RileyStreet Art on 4th St in San Rafael is an excellent place to purchase art materials. They often have sales. Mention that you are a student of mine and they will give you a 10% discount on non-sale items. Blick's Art Supply on Gilman in Berkeley is another option. Online stores include Cheap Joe's and Daniel Smith.
